General Overview

Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) in Albania play a significant role in increasing awareness and education of the community, activism and civic participation in policy-making, increasing transparency and accountability of local and central government, as well as providing services to local communities.

This role becomes even more relevant in terms of various important reforms that the country is undergoing and the important process of European integration. The European Council recommendation for the opening of the negotiations for Albania membership to the European Union on April 2018, brought the civil society agenda to a higher level, requiring substantial contribution through lobbying, advocacy and monitoring activities at national and local level to address a wide spectre of issues and problematic in the country .

The role of CSOs as promoters of change depends on their maturity, competence, preparedness and capacity to successfully cooperate with country strategic partners. CSOs still need assistance for consolidation of organizational structures, sustainable financial development, improve skills related to organizational development and management and inclusion in participatory processes.

The statistical data of Tirana Court show continues increase of the civil society sector in regards to the number of registered NPOs (only in the course of 2017, 345 new NPOs were registered). The legal and financial framework regulating the activity of NPOs has been subject to changes and amendments that have influenced the sustainability and activity of non-profit organizations as well as their relations with the state, therefore its knowledge and understanding by the sector remains a priority for enabling an efficient activity .
